School Report Cards Are Terror to Truants

"Character Building" Stressed in New Statements To Be

It's going to be a hard spring for the boy who once found it easy to play hookey from school in order to play marbles or explore the wilds of Central Fark.

For report cards of the future are going to report. They are already performing that function at the Horace Mann School, Broadway and 121st Street. And, judging from the favorable statements by those who have watched the system, other schools will follow its example.

playing hookey, tieing a can on a dog's tail, or at any of the other questionable pastimes of youth, more importance is given to that fact than his standing in history or geography. Such heads as "Habits and Attitudes Desirable for Good Citizenship," "Which Are Unusually Well Developed?" "Which Need Careful Training?" and "In Which Improvement Has Been Marked" are to be found on the cards as they now are sent to parents of pupils in the Mann School.

Ray gives out just a little mere of that human wistfulness which makes his comedy so alluring.

It is impossible to resist him. He wears spectacles and he is absent-minded, so much so that he spends all of his money for books and forgets to pay his rent.
